

BEFORE
Earlier this year with a natural-looking cleavage

AFTER
At an event last week showing off a bigger bust

Stephanie's Shock New Boob Job!

Yet another star from The Hills decides to enhance their assets by going under the surgeon's knife

It looks like Stephanie Pratt has taken a leaf out of her sister-in-law Heidi Montag's book and paid a visit to a plastic surgeon. We spotted the Hills star with a significantly fuller bust last week, suggesting she's had a little surgical help.

Wearing a plunging black corset top teamed with a gorgeous metallic jacket to the Cirque du Taconi event at the Viceroy Hotel in Santa Monica, her suddenly ample bosom was on full display.

"Stephanie has been known to take dieting to extremes," said a source. "And she's always complaining about her boobs disappearing when she loses weight. She talked about a boob job being the answer, so maybe she decided to finally go for it."

Dr Ayham Al-Ayoubi, medical director of the London Medical & Aesthetic Clinic, thinks Stephanie has definitely gone under the knife. "She has had a boob job because her inner cleavage is more defined – it's asymmetrical now," he says. "You can see that her right breast looks very straight and the left is curved – she has more definition in both breasts. I think she has gone with silicone and a breast augmentation."

Stephanie, 24, joined the cast of The Hills during season three in 2007 to star alongside her brother Spencer. She has since told how appearing on the hit TV show led year. "I remember saying: 'I can't believe how huge I look walking over to Lauren.' The producers never put pressure on us to lose weight, but it's embarrassing

Let's hope she doesn't go as far as Heidi. Stephanie looks lovely as she is to her feeling insecure about her body and admitted she has suffered from bulimia.

"I was horrified," she said last working with skinny girls."

Stephanie isn't the only star from The Hills to boost her assets dramatically since appearing on the reality show, which ended in July. Audrina Patridge and Kristin Cavallari have been accused of having boob jobs, although they both deny having work done.

And Stephanie has always been supportive of Heidi having a nip and tuck, even when she had 10 ops in one day. "If she feels better, I'm so happy. When a woman feels good about herself, that's the best feeling," Stephanie said.

But pals are worried she might go too far like Heidi. "Stephanie loves her new figure," our source said. "But let's hope she doesn't have so much work done that she doesn't look real any more. She looks lovely as she is."