

Top Stories Of The Week

Has Renée Had Surgery?

It's not just Stephanie who's sporting a fuller bust

She is widely acknowledged as one of the most slender actresses in Hollywood, so we were a little confused when Renée Zellweger was spotted out in Santa Monica with noticeably larger breasts. But she doesn't appear to have gained any curves elsewhere. Has our favourite former singleton treated herself to a cheeky boob job as she prepares to marry her actor boyfriend Bradley Cooper?

"Renée was a perfectly respectable 34B, but she wanted a boost for her wedding day," reveals a source close to the 41-year-old actress. "And it looks as if she has taken the plunge. She's already started updating her wardrobe with clingier tops and wrap dresses to flatter her new figure. She's happier than ever and it shows."

Plastic surgeon Dr Ayham Al-Ayoubi thinks the actress has gone under the knife: "I think she's probably had breast augmentation, because her breasts are projecting forwards and it's unlikely a change of bra would produce such a dramatic change in shape," he said.

Renée, who has been dating

Renée wanted a boost for her wedding

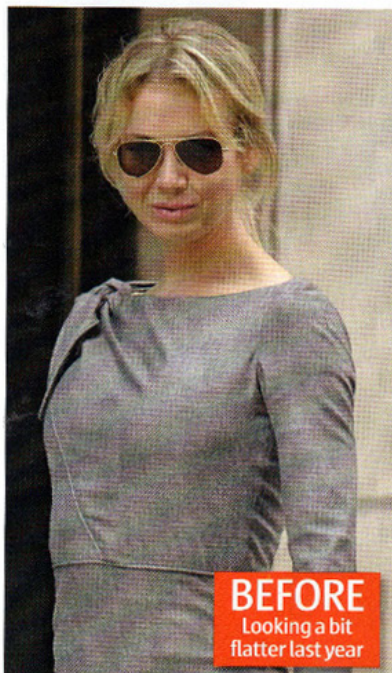

hunky Bradley for almost a year, is notoriously proud of her slender frame and is said to be relieved that plans for the third Bridget Jones film have stalled because she said she found fattening up for the role "horrible".

The actress maintains her lean physique with a strict diet and gruelling workout regime, which regularly sees her running in the punishing LA heat. Sources say her dedicated dieting could be the reason she has turned to implants. "Renée decided her breasts looked saggy and as a result was considering implants," the source said. "Her thinking was that they'd create a more womanly shape. But a good bra can also give an amazing boost, so maybe she's just bought some padded underwear!"

"Whatever the case, Renée looks great. She has a gorgeous boyfriend and a gorgeous figure."

The star, who has previously dated Jim Carrey and was briefly married to country singer Kenny Chesney, hooked up with Valentine's Day star Bradley in 2009. He moved into her Bel Air mansion earlier this year, and the couple have been inseparable ever since, with rumours of a wedding set for early next year. Should we buy a hat?

BEFORE
Looking a bit flatter last year

AFTER
Now with a much larger chest

WORDS: KELLY ALLEN, NICOLA COHEN, GERRAINA MARAZZOTTI PHOTOS: JONIC COOPER NEWS, GETTY IMAGES, IRTHEAR